1. Laterales

Información breve y complementaria al contenido principal que amplía el conocimiento.

Diversidad: el seguro de vida de la naturaleza

La vida en la Tierra es diversa porque cada individuo es único. Ningún organismo, salvo los gemelos idénticos, posee la misma combinación genética que otro. Esta variabilidad genética es el motor silencioso que sostiene la evolución y la biodiversidad.

El interés por comprender la herencia no es nuevo. A mediados del siglo xx, Gregor Mendel describió las leyes de la herencia en plantas de chícharo, sentando las bases de la genética. Décadas después, a inicios del siglo xx, se descubrió la relación entre genes y cromosomas, y en 1953 la estructura de la doble hélice de ADN reveló el mecanismo molecular detrás de esas leyes.

Hoy, el campo ha evolucionado hacia la genómica, la epigenética y la biología de sistemas, lo que permite comprender la herencia como un proceso dinámico y complejo, en el que múltiples factores interactúan y generan resultados emergentes

En términos de sistemas complejos, estas conexiones generan retroalimentación positiva y negativa que mantiene la estabilidad dinámica. Si un sistema falla, los demás intentan compensar. Por ejemplo, en la insuficiencia renal, el sistema excretor pierde capacidad de filtrar desechos, lo que impacta al laboratorio (acumulación de toxinas), al nervioso (fatiga) y al endocrino (desequilibrio hormonal).

Con el apoyo del qr, explora modelos 3D de sistemas humanos, con el objetivo de que entiendas el funcionamiento de tu cuerpo, comprendas la interconexión entre ellos y puedas adquirir hábitos saludables.¹

LOS AUTORES

El siguiente libro busca introducir a los alumnos al nivel A1 de inglés, por medio de diversas actividades que integren las cuatro habilidades del aprendizaje de los idiomas (Listening, Speaking, Reading y Writing) sin dejar de lado temas gramaticales y de vocabulario. Este libro fue pensado para ser amigable con el lector, tomando en cuenta las dificultades que aprender un idioma puede conllevar; añadiendo expresiones que faciliten la fluidez en la escritura y el habla.

En los propósitos formativos 1,2 y 3, el alumno aprende a interactuar y comunicarse en distintos contextos sociales y culturales, por medio de la presentación de si mismo y otras personas; el seguimiento de indicaciones, así como la identificación y descripción de objetos y espacios cotidianos.

En los propósitos formativos 4, 5 y 6, el alumno aprende a desenvolverse en contextos escolares y comunitarios, solicitando y proporcionando información personal haciendo preguntas sencillas y describiendo la diversidad de su entorno.

En los propósitos formativos 7 y 8 el alumno aprende a desarrollarse en situaciones cotidianas, aprendiendo a expresar sus gustos y opiniones, así como la pertenencia hacia un lugar y/o comunidad.

Verb to be (affirmative form)

The verb “to be” indicates existence, identity, or a state of being. In Spanish it means “ser o estar”. For example:

- I am a student. = Soy estudiante (identity).
- She is my friend. = Ella es mi amiga (existence).
- We are cold. = Tenemos frío (state of being).

The verb “to be” is conjugated as follows:

Long form	Contracted form
I am	I'm
You are	You're
He / She / It is	He's/ She's / It's
We are	We're
They are	They're

Remember that in everyday English, pronouns can be replaced by nouns such as names, places or animals. In those cases, the verb “to be” is conjugated the same way. For example:

Picture 1.3 I am

- Franco is a baby boy.
- London is a big city.

Personal pronouns

Pronouns are words that we use instead of a noun (person, place or thing) to avoid repetition. We use them as the subject of the sentence, in other words, the ones that perform the action. For example:

- Dad is calling. He is in Veracruz
- Carlos and I are students. We are in the same class.

Although in Spanish we tend to omit the pronoun (veo un perro), in English, it is crucial to have the pronoun as part of the sentence (I see a dog). The following chart shows the personal pronouns used in English.

Pronoun	Translation
I	Yo
You	Tú / Ustedes
He	Él
She	Ella
It	Esto(a). Usados en cosas o animales en singular.
We	Nosotros
They	Ellos(as)

As we mentioned above, remember that personal pronouns can replace nouns and vice versa. Here are some examples:

- Dylan and Fran are good friends. = They are good friends.
- Sofia and I are relatives. = We are relatives.
- The people from Veracruz are always happy. = They are always happy.
- The dog is sleeping. = It is sleeping.

Giving personal information

When introducing yourself, it is important to mention relevant details about you such as your name, age, nationality, occupation, likes, dislikes, etc. These details can be shared by using the following expressions:

- My name is = Mi nombre es
- I am --- years old = Tengo --- años
- I am from... = Soy de
- I am a/an --- = Soy un/una (referente a ocupación)
- I like / I love = Me gusta / Me encanta
- I don't like / I dislike = No me gusta

Picture1.8 Meeting

Some of the expressions above can be shortened to make speaking faster. For instance:

- My name is = My name's
- I am --- years old = I'm --- years old.
- I am from = I'm from
- I am a/an --- = I'm a/an ---

The use of long and short forms is exchangeable, and it does not affect communication.

Cardinal and ordinal numbers

Cardinal numbers represent quantity and answer the question “how many?” (¿cuántos?). For example, one (1), two (2), three (3).

Ordinal numbers indicate position or order in a sequence. They answer the question “which one?” (¿cuál?). For example, first (1st), second (2nd), third (3rd). In the following chart there are some examples of cardinal and ordinal numbers:

Formal and informal greetings

Greetings are expressions we use to say hello and start conversations with other people. We use them to be polite and friendly. Greetings are divided into formal and informal, and their use will depend merely on the speaking situation performed.

Formal greetings

They are used in polite situations such as conversations with your teacher, the school principal, or in general, with people you don't know well. Examples of formal greetings are:

- Good morning (buenos días)
- Good afternoon (buenas tardes)
- Good evening (buenas noches)
- Hello (hola)

Informal greetings

These types of greetings are used in informal context such as conversations with people you know well, for example, your friends, classmates or family.

- Hi (hola)
- Hello (hola)
- Hey (hola)

Certain questions can also be considered informal greetings, for instance:

- How are you? (¿Cómo estás?)
- How's it going? (¿Cómo va todo?)
- How are you doing? (¿Cómo te va?)

Activities

a) Write the different greetings you can use in the situations below.

1. Meeting your new English teacher:

Imperative form

The imperative form is used to give orders, instructions, or commands. Unlike other moods, it does not change tense; it is applied directly to the second person or the listener.

The second person, refers to the person who receives the messages, it implies the pronoun “you” pronoun, which is usually omitted.

Since the imperative is used with the second person, the pronoun is omitted, and the verb or auxiliary verb is placed at the beginning of the sentence. Let's see an example.

Picture 2.1 Don't move

Picture 2.2 Don't eat

- Keep walking
- Don't move
- Read the book
- Don't come for dinner later

After seeing some examples, it's time to introduce the affirmative and negative forms of the imperative.

The affirmative form uses the verb in its base form (without to), for example, “go out, keep going, let speak, sit down”. The negative form adds “don't” before the verb, for instance, “don't eat that, don't speak louder, don't run in the stairs, don't feed the dog”.

Activities

- a) Read the following text.

The Rules on the corporation

My name is Jane and I am an engineer at a private corporation. I want to tell you about my job, it is interesting, but it is very strict. They give us a list of rules every morning. For example: Arrive at the office by 8:00 am without delay. Log in to your computer immediately and open the software called "The machine".

This program monitors everything. If you take a break, select the correct activity in the system. When you go to the bathroom, click on "personal break". If you have a meeting, choose "conference". Do not forget! If you fail to update your status, the system will flag you. Follow the rules or you will face a discount or a formal sanction.

- b) Now read Jane's testimony and underline all the imperative sentences you find. Then, rewrite the following informal sentences into formal "company rules".

We have to be there at 8:00:

Instructions in the classroom

When you're in the classroom, the teacher gives instructions which are special words and phrases that you may not understand at first, but that become automatics as time passes by.

2.4 AI made picture

- Pay attention- listen carefully
- Be quiet- remain silent.
- Work in pairs/ work in groups- do an activity with your partner.
- Sit down- take a seat.
- Go to the blackboard—proceed to write on the blackboard.
- Raise your hand to talk- raise your hand if you want to speak.

These commands are frequently used inside the classroom. They are part of the imperative, because they are part of the steps of things that you must do.

Activities

- a) Read the following text and answer the exercise below.

A collaborative classroom

Welcome to this week's class. First, please pay attention to the next activity, let's take a sheet of paper and write "what would you like to learn this semester?" Include every topic, even from other subjects. Then, form groups of three and make a list that answers that question. Next, raise your hand if you have finished and help other groups. Finally, stand in front of the class and explain "what would you like to learn in this semester"

- b) Now choose True (T) or false (F)

The activity is only about things you want to learn in English class.

The first step is to pay attention to the teacher.

Students need to work individually to make the list.

You should raise your hand only when you are finished

If a group finishes early, they should sit quietly and wait.

The final step is to present the ideas to the rest of the class.

- c) Complete the following “Classroom agreement” by choosing the correct verb from the box (use do not/don’t if necessary)

Activity

a) Write a sentence with each of the verbs in the previous list.

In the school environment, we use a specific sentence pattern to speak either with our classmates or our teachers. This pattern usually follows a simple structure (subject+ verb +complement), which is reflected in the following examples:

- Fabio writes on the whiteboard.
- We listen to the “language and communication” lesson.
- We open our book at page 45
- Estefani answers the question.

Activities

- a) Read the following text and circle all the school-related verbs you find.

A Day in high school

“Every morning, I arrive at school and greet my friends. During the first period, our teacher asks us to open our books. We read a short story and then we discuss the main ideas. In Science class, we conduct experiments and record the results in our journals. During the break, I share my lunch with my classmates. In the afternoon, we often use computers to research our final project. I love school because I learn something new every day.”

- b) Write five sentences describing what you do in different subjects.

Useful expressions for classroom interaction

After reviewing the imperative form and some verbs used in school, let's introduce some expressions for the classroom. Don't forget that to express ourselves better, we need phrases that complement our language such as "May I go to the bathroom?" and "May I come in?". There are other expressions that can be useful as well.

Activities

- a) Read the dialogue between Mateo (a student) and Teacher Sofia. Underline the expressions Mateo uses to ask for help.

The first day confusion

Teacher Sofia: Okay class, please open your books on page 45 and solve the crossword. Mateo: Excuse me, teacher? I don't understand. Can you repeat that, please?

Teacher Sofia: Of course, Mateo. Open your book on page 45 and complete the activity.

Mateo: Oh, thank you! Teacher, how do you say 'sacapuntas' in English?

Teacher Sofia: It is called a 'pencil sharpener.'

Mateo: Thanks. Also... may I go to the bathroom, please?

Teacher Sofia: Yes, you may. Hurry back!

Picture 2.6 Classroom

In the classroom, you will feel frustrated when you don't know a word and it is even worse if you want to say a complete sentence, so you can use these functional phrases to keep the conversation going, even when you are confused.

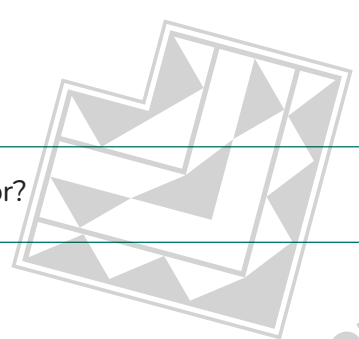

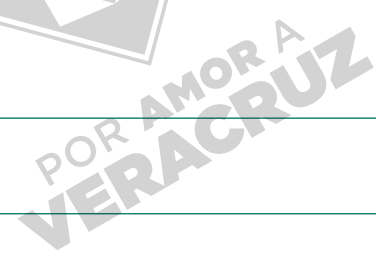

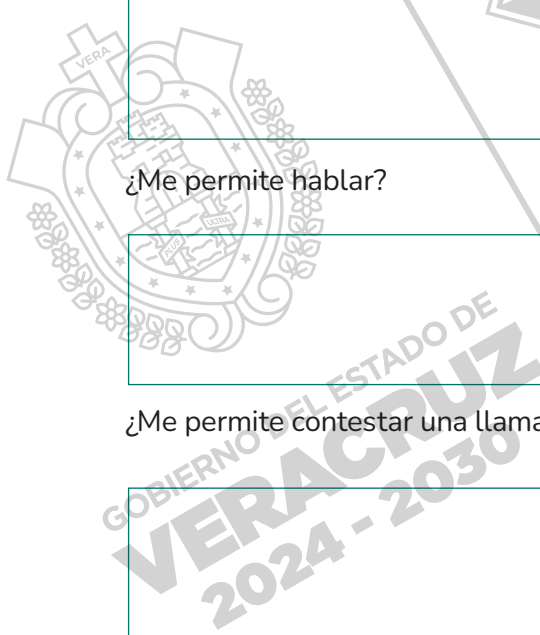

Activities

- a) Translate the following sentences into English. You can work with other classmates.

¿Puedo ir a la cafetería?

¿Puede repetir eso, porfavor?

¿Me permite hablar?

¿Me permite contestar una llamada?

No entiendo, ¿me puede explicar nuevamente?

¿Cómo se dice ----- en inglés?

¿Qué significa?

b) Look at the following classroom situations. Write the correct expression you should use for solving the problem.

The teacher is explaining something, but you don't understand the topic.

You have lost your pencil

You forgot your notebook

You want to say the word "corrector", but you don't know the word.

Colors and sizes

When we seek to describe objects, places and even people, we rely on physical characteristics, such as the clothes people wear.

Therefore, the first step is to identify “the color” that is perceived (with the eyes of course).

There is some vocabulary for colors:

- Primary: Red, Blue, Yellow.
- Secondary: Green, Orange, Purple.
- Neutral: Black, White, Gray, Brown .

Picture 3.5 Colors

Once we saw the colors, now we introduce “the size” as part of a descriptive element. The following vocabulary is used for sizes.

- Huge /Enormous
- Big/Large
- Medium
- Small
- Tiny

It should be noted that both color and size are adjectives that describe and normally precede the noun, which would be the object (Size + Color + Noun), for making an extensive description of something, you can use other adjectives that complete it.

To make a description, use these points

Opinion- silly, beautiful

Size- large, little

Color- blue, pink

Shape- square, rectangular

Nationality- French, American

Material- wooden, metal

Activities

- a) Read the description of the art project. Underline the sizes and circle the colors.

Verb to be (interrogative and negative form)

Can you remember the “be” verb? (“ser o estar” in Spanish). It can be also used in the negative and interrogative forms.

In the case of the negative structure, it is conjugated as follows:

Pronoun	Long Form	Contraction
I	am not	'm not
You	are not	aren't
He/She /It	is not	isn't
We	are not	aren't
They	are not	aren't

In the interrogative or question structure, it is conjugated as follows:

Verb to be	Pronoun
Am	I
Are	You
Is	He/She /It
Are	We
Are	They

Remember that for the negative form, “not” is added after the verb “to be”. Bear in mind that the use of either contracted or long forms can be exchangeable and does not affect the sentence meaning. Remember as well that for the interrogative form, the verb to be comes before the pronoun. Here are some examples:

Is the grass wet?

Leonel isn't a teacher

Are the bottles empty?

Coatepec is not a country

Picture 4.1 Interrogation

Activities

- a) Read the following dialogue and underline the negative and interrogative forms of the verb “to be”.

Activity

Practice activity: I am not just a face, breaking stereotypes

Step 1. On a piece of paper, students have to write three questions to ask someone to know them beyond their appearance.

Example: Are you a fan of K-pop? Are you working out? Is blue your favorite color?

Step 2. Draw a T- Chart on the board and their notebooks. On one side, students write a common stereotype about high schoolers. On the other side, they use the negative form of the verb to be to refute it. For example:

Stereotype (They say)	Reality (I am not)
All teenagers are lazy	I am not lazy; I work after school
Quiet students are shy	I am not shy; I am just a good listener

Step 3. (optional because you require a ball of yarn)

The students stand in circle. One student holds the ball of yarn and asks a classmate a question: For example: “Are you a person who likes helping others? The classmate answers: “Yes, I am” or “No, I am not, but... I am”.

If the answer is positive or builds a connection, the first student tosses the yarn to the second while holding onto the end. By the end, a visible “web” of yarn connects everyone in the room

Sometimes, when you are asking a question, a yes or no is an acceptable answer. Those kinds of structures are called closed questions and are used to either confirm or deny something.

The structure for responding to them is auxiliary+subject+verb.

Auxiliaries:

There are different types of auxiliary verbs in English. The following list shows you the most common:

- Do/Does
- Is/Are
- Can
- Have
- Will

Here is an example of a closed question:

Are you a high school student?

The answer to this question is Yes, I am for an affirmative answer or No, I'm not for a negative one. Notice that commas are quite important to make the answer understandable.

The following chart shows you examples of Yes/No answers to questions with the verb to be.

Subject	Verb to be	Yes Answer	No Answer
I	Am I?	Yes, I am.	No, I'm not. / No, I am not
You	Are you?	Yes, you are.	No, you aren't. / No, you are not.
He	Is he?	Yes, he is.	No, he isn't. / No, he is not.
She	Is she?	Yes, she is.	No, she isn't. / No, she is not.
It	Is it?	Yes, it is.	No, it isn't. / No, he is not.

Remember that all answers to closed questions, either affirmative or negative, use the auxiliary verb contained in the question. For instance:

Question Answer

Do you live in Coatepec? Yes, I do. / No, I don't.

Are they your parents? Yes, they are. / No, they aren't.

Can you swim? Yes, I can. / No, I can't.

Will he go to the party? Yes, he will / No, he won't.

Activities

- a) Read the text and underline 5 closed questions and their answers.

A Day in Xalapa

Xalapa is a beautiful city in Veracruz, Mexico. Do you live in a city like this? Maria lives there with her family. She is 15 years old and studies in high school. Does she like English? Yes, she does! Every morning, is she tired? No, she isn't because she drinks coffee. Can she play the guitar? Yes, she can. Will she visit the museum today? Maybe. Her brother asks: "Do you have homework?" Maria says, "No, I don't." They walk to school together. Is the weather rainy? Often, yes!

Speaking: The Mysterious Character

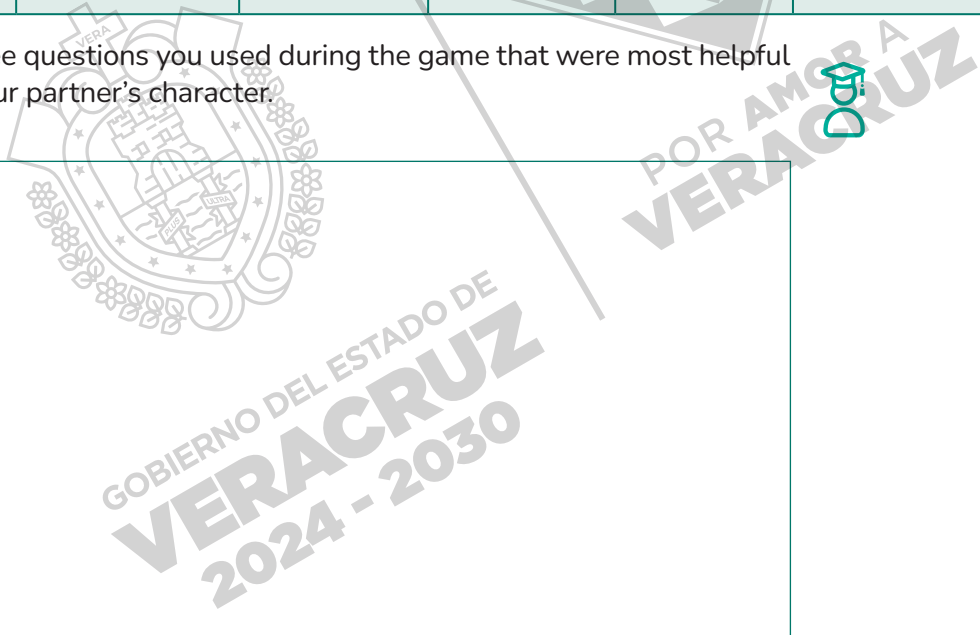

- d) Use closed questions to identify a secret character from a list

1. Work in pairs. Do not show your partner your character sheet.
2. Choose one character from the provided list as your "Secret Identity."
3. Your partner must ask "Yes/No" questions to find out who you are.
4. You must answer only "Yes, I do/am" or "No, I don't/aren't."
5. The first person to guess the secret character wins!

Name	Does he / she have a backpack?	Does he / she wear a cap / hat?	Is he / she happy?	Does he / she like Maths?	Does he / she play an instrument?

e) Write three questions you used during the game that were most helpful to identify your partner's character.

Possessive adjectives

Possessive adjectives are used to express property, or ownership to someone. That is to say, they are words that show who owns something. They always come before a noun and can modify it. For example:

My name is Diego.

She forgot her pencil case.

We are cleaning our house.

The following chart shows you more examples of possessive adjectives.

Subject	Possessive adjective	Example
I	My	My cat is Bolita.
You	Your	Your backpack looks heavy.
He	His	He lost his phone.
She	Her	She broke her arm.
It	Its	My dog likes its new plate.
We	Our	We love our English class!
They	their	They decorated their new home.

You can combine possessive adjectives with other subjects to expand the conversation. For instance:

- English class students always use my markers to write on the board.
- Dogs generally look aggressive, but the ones living in our house are friendly.
- I think that your personality is so cool!

Difference between possessive adjectives and possessive pronouns

It lies in their placement within the sentence. On the one hand, possessive adjectives are located before nouns, e.g. My book. On the other hand, possessive pronouns replace nouns, e.g. The book is mine.

- b) Read the following text and circle all the possessive adjectives you find.

The Clean-Up Project

Hello! My name is Alex. I am 16 years old. I live in a quiet city with my parents, my sister, and my dog. In our neighborhood, there is a problem with trash in the park. My friends and I want to fix it. Yesterday, Maria brought her gloves and a rake. Pablo brought his large trash bags. We noticed the park lost its beauty because of the waste. We talked to the neighbors, and they gave us their support. Now, your help is also needed! If we use our energy together, we can save the park.

Telephone numbers and addresses

Telephone numbers

Unlike Spanish, in English all telephone numbers are given digit by digit. In other words, you must say one number after another. The following is a representation of how to say phone numbers.

01 800 30 40 50

is said as

0 – 1 – 8 – 0 – 0 – 3 – 0 – 4 – 0 – 5 – 0

Some useful expressions to ask for or give your phone number are:

- What's your phone number? (¿Cuál es tu número de teléfono?)
- My phone number is... (Mi número es...)

Picture 4.6 Telephone

When giving a phone number, the number 0 is pronounced as “oh”.

Addresses

Do you know your neighborhood? Can you remember your street name or house number? All those data are part of your address, which is the specific information that tells where a person lives, studies, works, or where a place is located.

A complete address includes the following information:

- House / Building number
- Street name and type (street / avenue / boulevard)
- Neighborhood (can be included for addresses in Mexico)
- City
- State or region
- Postal code
- Country

³ <https://learnenglishteens.britishcouncil.org/skills/listening/a1-listening/understanding-numbers>

Interesting fact:

In the English language there are zip code and postal code. They both mean the same (código postal), however, zip code is mostly used inside the US, meanwhile postal code is mainly used in countries out of the US.

For example:

257, Londres Street, Del Carmen neighborhood, Coyoacán, México City, 04100, Mexico.

Some useful expressions when talking about an address are the following:

- What's your address? (¿Cuál es tu dirección?)
- My address is... (Mi dirección es...)
- I live at... (Vivo en...)

Activities

- a) Use your own information to complete the following chart.

- d) Read the text below and answer the questions.

The importance of a name

Mariana is volunteering at the local health clinic in her town. A doctor from an international organization arrives to help, but he cannot understand the names of the patients. Mariana steps in. She carefully spells out the surnames: 'G-A-R-C-I-A' and 'X-I-M-E-N-E-Z'. Because of her help, the medical records are correct, and the patients receive the right medication.

1. What is an “international organization”? Is it from the same town or from another country?

2. How did Mariana’s knowledge of spelling help her community’s health?

3. Why would a government official ignore a petition with many spelling errors?

4. Does it affect the “seriousness” of the request?

How deep is your love – Bee Gees

I know your eyes in the morning sun
 I feel you touch me in the pouring rain

 And you come to me on a summer breeze
 Keep me warm in your love, then you softly leave

Picture 5.6 Descriptions

In: It is used to express long periods of time such as months, years, centuries, seasons, and even some parts of the day. For example:

I celebrate my birthday in August.

Computers were invented in the XX century.

We have a class break in the summer.

On: It is used for specific days and dates. For example:

We are going to the beach on Saturday.

Vocabulary about trips

- Hiking—outdoor activity in which you walk
- A Trail—a path that you can follow when there is no street
- Jogging – similar to run, but slower
- Stick together—to stay close or next to each other

Activities

- a) Read the next text and underline the prepositions at, in, on

The Farewell Hike

Next week is a busy time for our group of friends. On Saturday, we are planning one of our favorite trips to the mountains. We usually start hiking very early, exactly at 7:00 AM, to avoid the hot weather. We must be careful and stay on the trail, so we don't get lost. Our teacher always tells us to stick together because weird noises can be heard in the forest that might be animals!

In the afternoon, we will return home because we are having a going-away party for Maria. She is moving to Canada on Sunday. The party starts at 6:00 PM. We are sad she is leaving, but we hope to go jogging with her one last time in the morning before she goes to the airport.

- b) Complete the following sentences using the vocabulary provided and the correct preposition of time (in, on, or at).

1. I like to go (exercise) with my dog the morning.

2. We planned our school (travels) June.
3. Please (stay close) when we walk on the (path) night.
4. The (farewell event) for the principal is Friday 5:00 PM.
5. I heard (strange sound) midnight last night.

c) Look at the schedule for the “Cultural Week” in your town. Write five complete sentences describing the events. Use a different preposition (in, on, at) and at least three pieces of vocabulary from our list.

Day	Time	Activity
Friday	6:00 PM	Going away party for the exchange students.
Saturday	8:00 AM	Group jogging at the local park.
Sunday	10:00 AM	Hiking trip to the “Sierra” trail.
October	All Month	Preparation for the Day of the Dead.

On Friday, we have a going away party at 6:00 PM.

d) Write a short paragraph (50-70 words) about a dream vacation or a school trip. You must include:

At least two specific times (using at).

At least two specific days or dates (using on).

At least one month or season (using in).

Three vocabulary words (e.g., trail, hiking, weird noise).

Years and months

Around the world we used the name of the months of the year, maybe you know the names in Spanish, but what about in English, do you remember?

Activity

a) Translate every month: and then; in pairs spell every month with your partners

Now we have talked about months, but what about the years? Do you have a year that you keep in mind? When talking about years, we say them by splitting the digits into two parts. For example, 1994 is said “nineteen ninety-four”. For the 2000s, for example 2010, we say “two thousand ten”

Preposition Tip:

- Use “In” for months and years: In January, In 2026.
- Use “On” if you include a specific day: On March 21st.

To use them correctly, we also talk about seasons: spring, summer, autumn and winter, but what preposition do we use?

Hours and times of the day

Hours

Hours are the units we use to measure time during the day. In other words, they tell us what time it is. For example:

1:00

2:30

5:45

There are different ways to express specific times, which are explained as follows:

To express full hours, we use the expression o'clock. For example:

7:00 = seven o'clock

3:00 = three o'clock

To express thirty minutes past the hour, we use the expression half. Such expression can be said in two different ways:

6:30 = six thirty/ half past six

8:30 = half past eight/ eight thirty

Thirty can also be used to tell half hours.

To express fifteen minutes before or after hours, quarter. For instance:

6:45 = a quarter to seven

9:15 = a quarter past nine

To tell other times, we simply say the main hour followed by minutes as normal numbers. For example:

6:37 = six thirty-seven

4:58 = four fifty-eight

On the corner, there is a grocery store where my family buys milk and snacks. There is also a bakery, where people buy fresh bread. Near the bakery, there is a butcher's and a fishmonger's. My mom goes there regularly because she buys meat and fish to make our meals.

Across the street, there is a greengrocer's where most residents buy fruits and vegetables. Whenever we feel sick, we go to the local clinic where a doctor and a nurse help us feel better and if we need some medicines, we go to the drugstore. I love my community because it has everything I need.

There is / There are

We use there is and there are to say that something or some things exist or are present in a place. In other words, these two expressions help us talk about what is in a certain place or space. In Spanish, both expressions can be understood as the equivalent of “hay”.

There is

On the one hand, we use there is for singular nouns, that is to say, one person, one thing, one animal, one event or one place. Sentences with there is, are structured as follows:

There is + singular noun+ complement (optional)

For example:

- There is a baby in the crib.
- There is a cat walking over the roof.
- There is a notebook on the table.

There are

On the other hand, we use there are for plural nouns, that is to say, two or more people, things, animals, events or places. The structure for sentences with there are, is the following:

There are + plural noun+ complement (optional)

For example:

- There are five pens in my pencil case.
- There are two glasses inside the cupboard.
- There are twenty students in this class.

1. a backpack under the chair.

2. two students in the classroom.

Negative form

When writing negative sentences, “there is” changes to “there isn’t” and “there are” changes to “there aren’t”. Despite these changes, the sentence structure remains the same for both singular and plural. For instance:

- There isn’t a fan in the classroom.
- There aren’t many trees in Mexico City.
- There isn’t a laptop at the library.
- There aren’t any birds in the nest.

4. There isn’t / There aren’t many books on the desk.

Interrogative form

To form questions with there is and there are, some elements of the sentence must be switched in order to make a question correctly. In other words, is or are will be first placed in the sentence followed by there, the noun and complement.

Is there / Are there + noun + complement (optional)

For example:

- Are there some magazines in the bookshelf?
- Is there a lamp in the bedroom?
- Are there three apples in your lunch?
- Is there a heat wave over Veracruz?

In

This preposition is used when something is inside a space. For example:

- The money is in the wallet.

On

We use this preposition when something is touching a surface. For instance:

- The TV is on the shelf.

Under

We use this preposition to indicate that something is below something else. For example:

Review of open-ended questions with wh- words (what, where, when, who, how, why)

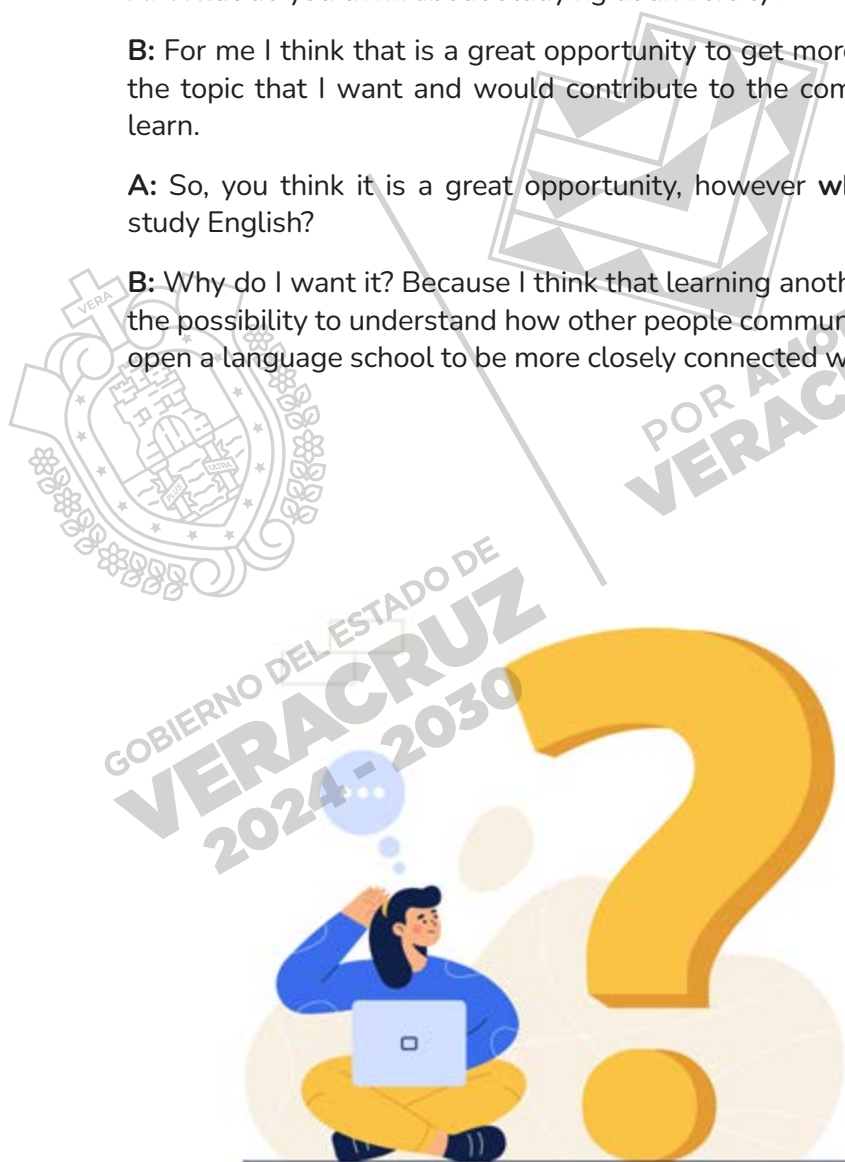

So far, we have learned closed questions and open ended questions. Remember that closed questions are structured with subject + auxiliary + verb. Additionally, although open-ended questions use the same structure, they can be accompanied by Wh words to add fluency to the conversation. For example:

A: What do you think about studying at university?

B: For me I think that is a great opportunity to get more knowledge about the topic that I want and would contribute to the community with that I learn.

A: So, you think it is a great opportunity, however why do you want to study English?

B: Why do I want it? Because I think that learning another language opens the possibility to understand how other people communicate, and I want to open a language school to be more closely connected with our languages.

Picture 7.1 More question

The previous conversation was a clear example of how the Wh words in questions can drive to answers that keep the conversation fluent. Remember that the Wh words have the next specific functions:

What: to ask about things or actions.

Where: to ask about places or locations.

When: to ask about time, dates or days.

Who: to ask about people

Why : to ask about reasons

How: to ask for manners or descriptions

Use of “favorite” in simple sentences and use of “prefer”

Do you speak about your favorite things in the world? Or your preferences? If you want to say something that you like more than the alternative you are being given, you can say “I prefer”. However, if you want to talk about something that you love, you say “favorite”. Summarizing, if you like something, you can use “prefer” or “favorite”. Here are some differences between them.

“Favorite” is your first choice in a category, in other words, you don’t like anything else.

“Favorite”: My favorite+ (category)+ is+(the thing you say).

Example: My favorite video game franchise is Mario Bros.

“Prefer” is used when you have been given different options and choose one over the others.

“Prefer”: I Prefer + (option A)+to/over+(option B).

Example: I prefer chilaquiles rather than Italian food.

Vale: That's okay. I prefer Action movies over Horror anyway. Horror movies give me nightmares!

Gael: Haha, I understand. Let's see an Action movie then. What about snacks?

Vale: I definitely prefer popcorn to nachos. Nachos are too messy in the dark.

Gael: I agree. My favorite popcorn flavor is extra butter.

Vale: Yum! And who is your favorite actor? Maybe he is in the movie we choose.

Verb-ing (gerund)

The use of “gerund” works for representing an action, an experience or idea. To start sentences with an action instead of a subject, ing words come into play. They work as nouns to communicate habits, things that you love or feel identified with. For example:

Gaming is an immersive experience

Traveling to “pueblos magicos” is rewarding

Exercising is good for your long-term health

A gerund is formed by adding “ing” to the end of a verb.

Jen: What's she like? Is she tall or small?

Conjunctions: because, and, so (to respond and give reasons)

Within the English language, conjunctions like because or so have the main function of joining words, phrases or clauses together.

For example: Why are you studying in highschool? Because it prepares you for the next level, So, once you graduate, you will be able to attend the university and have more job opportunities.

We use “because” to give reasons. This word answers questions that ask why “And” is used to add information to the conversation. “So” is used to express the result of something..

In the case where singular nouns end in "s" or "z", the saxon genitive will still be placed.

We only add an ' (apostrophe) when our plural noun ends in "s".
