En este proyecto desarrollan concepciones del ser humano como animal, ser con razón, ser con espíritu, productor de cultura o un proyecto hacia lo mejor; y otras concepciones en las que es algo insignificante, frágil, poco valioso, nada diferente a una cosa entre otras cosas. Las concepciones se originaron en circunstancias históricas determinadas y desde paradigmas culturales específicos. Además, utiliza las herramientas tecnológicas a su alcance.

El proyecto consiste en la elaboración de un folleto donde informarán sobre una leyenda popular de su comunidad en inglés. El objetivo que el estudiante practique los tiempos verbales y las formas gramaticales en inglés.

Humanidades

Actividad

El estudiante investiga una o varias leyenda(s) popular(es) de su comunidad y a través de un folleto hace una descripción detallada utilizando los contenidos de inglés estudiados en esta guía de inglés III, usando las tecnologías de comunicación a su alcance e imágenes alusivas al texto. El folleto se presenta ante el grupo y se puede compartir entre la comunidad educativa.

Play - Jugar	Swim - Nadar	Be - Ser / Estar

Regular verbs

As you learned in the previous module, the past participle form of a regular verb is formed the same way as its past, adding the ending -ED. Keep in mind that although they are written the same, the meaning is different. Look at the example:

Present	Past	Past participle
Wash	Washed	Washed
Lavo	Lavé	Lavado

Irregular verbs

On the other hand, for irregular verbs, there is no rule for forming verbs in the past or participle (although the way they are formed can be classified into some groups), so you will have to memorize them. Look at the example:

Present	Past	Past participle
Sing	Sang	Sung
Canto	Canté	Cantado

Remember that the Spanish endings of verbs in the past participle are -ADO or -IDO.

Activity: Complete the chart shown below by writing the past and past participle form of the following regular verbs and their meaning in Spanish.

Present	Past	Past participle
Travel	Traveled Viajé	Traveled Viajado

Affirmative sentences with Present Perfect

Although the name of this grammatical tense mentions the present, it refers to the past.

The difference between this and the past simple is that in the present perfect it is mentioned that something happened without specifying when.

The present perfect is used in the following cases:

a) The action began in the past and continues in the present. For example:

I have lived in Xalapa for 5 years.
(He vivido Xalapa por 5 años)

b) The time for carrying out the action has not ended. For example:

They have studied French since 2020.
(Ellos han estudiado francés desde el 2020)

- c) The action is constantly repeated in an indeterminate time between the past and the present.

We have gone to the cinema several times.
(Nosotros hemos ido al cine varias veces)

- d) The action concluded recently. For this use just.

She has just finished to do exercise.
(Ella acaba de terminar de hacer ejercicio)

- e) The time at which the action was performed is not relevant.

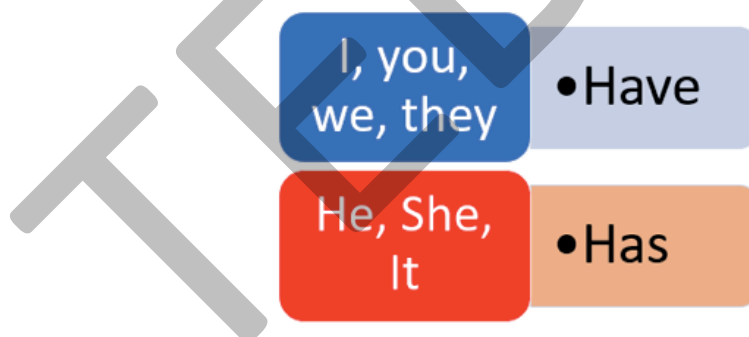

We haven't watched "The Little Mermaid" movie.
(Nosotros no hemos visto la película de "La Sirenita")

As you can see in the examples, the structure of the affirmative sentence for the present perfect is as follows:

Personal Pronoun	Auxiliary Verb Have / Has	Past Participle Verb	Complement
I Yo	have he	eaten comido	pizza pizza

However, before you put what you just learned into practice, you should know the following about auxiliaries:

1. Present perfect utilizes the words have or has as auxiliaries. Its use depends on the pronoun that is going to be used in the sentence, as follows:

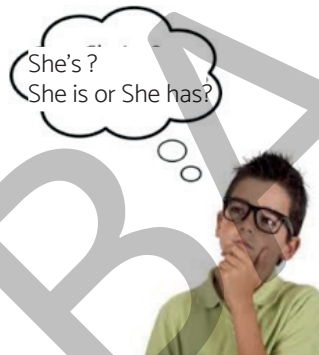

2. In both cases, their meaning in Spanish is related to the verb haber, for example: yo, he, tú has, él o ella ha, nosotros hemos, or ellos han, according to the pronoun of the sentence.
3. It is possible to make a contraction between the pronoun and the auxiliaries of the present perfect.

Contraction

Contraction
I have	I've
You have	You've
He has	He's
She has	She's
It has	It's
We have	We've
They have	They've

Pay attention that the contraction of the third person singular (She, He, It) is the same as the contraction of the present simple of the verb to be and the present progressive.

How do you know when it is one or when it is another? Very easy! We identify the present perfect because after the contraction there is a verb in the past participle.

Example: I've lived in Veracruz since 1998.

Negative sentences with Present Perfect

In English, a negative sentence is made by setting the word, not after the auxiliary, and since in this case the auxiliaries are the words have or has, the particle not should be placed after them, as shown in the following table:

Personal Pronoun	Auxiliary verb	not	Past Participle Verb	Complement
I	have	not	been	In Tlaxcala.
She	has	not	played	Soccer.

Keep in mind that it is also possible to form contractions in the negative form of the present perfect joining the auxiliary with the particle not, in the following way:

Contraction
I have not	I haven't
You have not	You haven't
He has not	He hasn't
She has not	She hasn't
It has not	It hasn't
We have not	We haven't
They have not	They haven't

Interrogative sentences with Present Perfect

Auxiliary	Personal Pronoun	Past Participle Verb	Complement	?
Have	they	visited	the cathedral	?
Has	he	met	the Presidenr	?

These types of questions are called yes/no questions, that is, there are only two possible answers, yes or no, however these must be accompanied by the corresponding personal and auxiliary pronoun. Look at the examples.

Use of since and for

As mentioned before, the present perfect tense refers to a moment in the past without mentioning exactly when the actions happened, however, it is possible to consider the duration or the starting point, using the adverbs since and for.

We use since to talk about a specific moment. Its meaning in Spanish is desde.

I have had a car since	This morning
	Last week
	Yesterday
	I was a child
	Wednesday
	2 o'clock
	1990

Keep in mind that since can only be used in perfect grammatical tenses (present perfect, simple, present perfect continuous, past perfect simple, past perfect continuous, future perfect simple and future perfect continuous).

On the other hand, we use for to talk about a period of time. Its meaning in Spanish is por.

I have had a car for	Two hours
	A week
	A month
	Six years
	A long time

In this case, for could be used in present perfect and in simple past too.

I traveled to Papantla for 2 years.

 c) Has Elizabeth danced _____ 15 minutes?

 e) Jhoana hasn't traveled by airplane _____ last year.

The use of other common adverbs

Some adverbs of time often accompany the present perfect to emphasize the moment in which the action happened. The main ones are:

Adverb	English	Spanish
Just (apenas)	I have just visited the museum.	Apenas he visitado el museo.
Already (ya)	He has already danced that song.	Él ya ha bailado esa canción.
Never (nunca)	I have never cooked rice.	Yo nunca he cocinado arroz.
Yet (todavía)	They have not eaten yet .	Ellos todavía no han comido.
Ever (alguna vez)	Have you ever had a pet?	¿Has tenido alguna vez una mascota?
How long (por cuanto tiempo)	How long have you swum?	¿Por cuánto tiempo has nadado?

Note: From the examples, you can notice the following.

- Just and already are used in affirmative sentences and are placed after the auxiliary have / has; never is placed in the same position but transforms the sentence into a negative one.
- Yet is used in negative sentences and is placed until the end of the sentence.
- Ever is used mainly in questions, and since in this type of sentences the auxiliary and the personal pronoun change position, it is placed after the personal pronoun.
- How long is used in questions, and because it uses a Wh-question, it is placed at the beginning of the sentence.
