Introducción

En este módulo 3 de tu curso de inglés 3, vas a ejercitar tu habilidad narrativa para contar pequeñas anécdotas o situaciones utilizando el pasado progresivo en sus formas afirmativa, negativa e interrogativa haciendo uso del vocabulario que se usa para hablar tanto de hábitos, como de rutinas que tenías en algún momento del pasado.

Para complementar el recuento de tus anécdotas, vas a aprender a contrastar el pasado simple (que ya se trabajó en el curso previo de inglés 2) junto con el pasado progresivo para enumerar secuencias de acciones que te permitirán contar o describir de manera más fluida lo que hiciste en tus vacaciones previas; por ejemplo, cuando fuiste de visita a casa de tu familia, a algún sitio de interés, cuando fuiste a festejos, o cuando relatas tus recuerdos más destacados, o bien, que tengan una significación relevante para ti.

Así que, vamos a dar inicio con este módulo 3 de tu curso de inglés en Telebachillerato.

I spent my last holidays in my grandparents' little town. I travelled around by bike. Every morning I got up early, took my bike, visited the villages on the way and talked to people. I felt really nice while I was cycling and breathing fresh air.

My friends preferred to spend their holidays by the sea. So, while I was cycling, my friends were probably swimming in the sea.

But one day, when I was talking to a farmer in a village, my mobile phone rang. My friends were calling to tell me that they were waiting under a bus stop because it was raining so heavily at the seaside and they were coming back home!

	Right	Wrong	Doesn't say.
The girl went to a big city for vacation.
She got up early every day.
She missed her friends.
Her friends were having lot of fun.

The simple past and past continuous, are used to express actions in the past, however each has a different function.

Simple past

We use the simple past to talk about:

- Completed actions, habits and facts in the past.

I travelled around by bike.

I felt really nice.

Past continuous

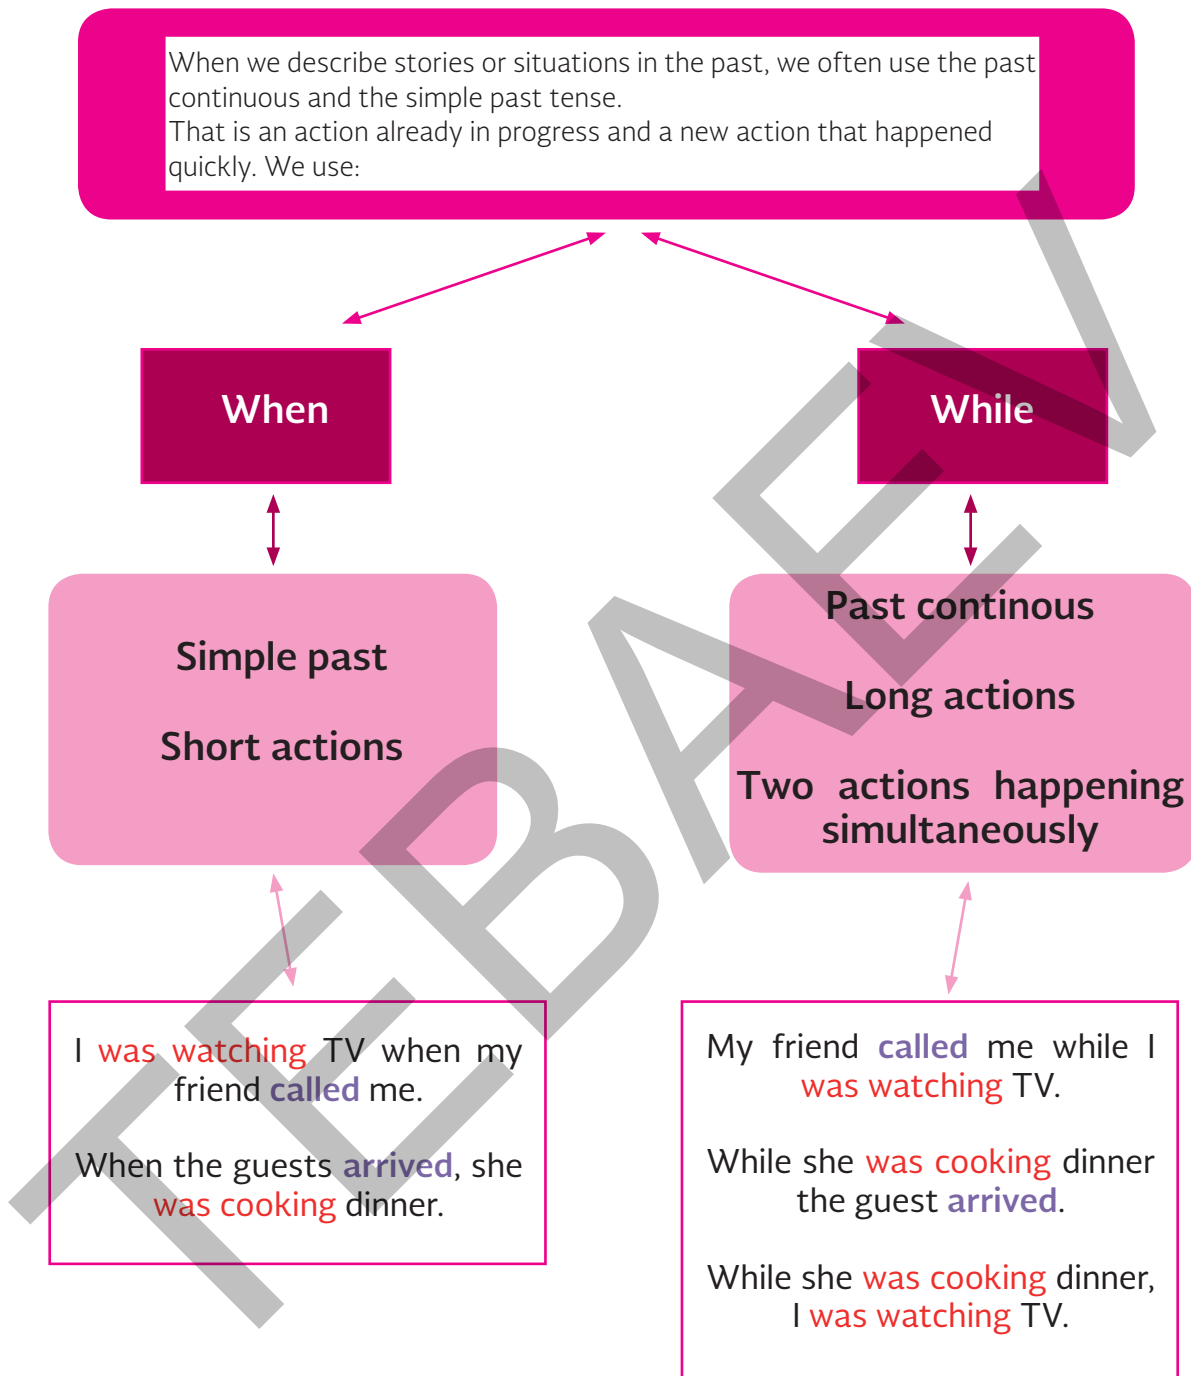

The past continuous is used to express:

- Describe an action already in progress in the past.

While I was cycling, my friends were probably swimming in the sea.

- The past continuous does not tell us if an action was finished or not.
- The simple past always tells us that an action was finished.

I was walking through the market, looking around when I saw something amazing: some women were speaking in their native language, they were wearing beautiful and colorful clothes. I just stood there looking at them. But I didn't understand anything.
